After shepherding Pink Aid into its 5-year anniversary, Amy Katz may have hung up her president’s hat, but now, the woman affectionately known as the “heart and soul” of Pink Aid, plans to use her next chapter to focus less on day-to-day operations and more on new Pink Aid initiatives near and dear to her pink heart.

For those who know Amy, first and foremost, this means helping new breast cancer patients. “I always spend a portion of my day speaking to newly diagnosed patients. I try to help with the initial steps, put them on a path and change their outlook to a more positive one.”

This passion has driven Amy to spread her “pink angel wings” to realize another of her longterm visions for Pink Aid. Soon, she hopes to help develop a mentor program in which newly diagnosed patients can talk to a Pink Aid mentor that has been through a similar diagnosis or treatment for guidance and reassurance. “We all need that ‘warrior’ who has been there, can answer questions and explain what to expect and how to continue daily life upon an overwhelming diagnosis. Keeping someone from going down the dark road alone is the greatest gift we as survivors can give to someone first walking in pink shoes.”

Another passion of Amy’s is finding ways to involve the younger generation, as so many children/teens/young adults are dealing with breast cancer at home or with a friend’s family. “Once you make your kids part of the process, it becomes a way of life for them, too, their ‘new normal.’ This is a lesson I learned from Jennifer Griffin. She made her entire cancer journey, including shopping for a wig, part of her children’s experience as well. That was a very important takeaway for me. I’m thrilled about the way our local youth has taken on Pink Aid as a cause and I want to nurture their involvement.”

Amy works closely with new co-presidents Susan Byer and Andrew Mitchell-Namdar, runs Pink Aid’s Pink Purse and is deeply committed to staying close to the local population in need. Always striving to give back to a community that has given her so much, Amy also enjoys nurturing Pink Aid Long Island’s growth and ultimately hopes to spread Pink Aid to other areas when it is ready for further expansion. “The only difference is that I can now get my work done before 9:00pm! Once you are in the pink, you live life in the pink. And the people you meet along the way are the most beautiful shade of pink!”

Many Shades of Pink:
For Founding President Amy Katz, Pink Aid is a Way of Life
In Year 5, Pink Aid’s Partnerships Grow & Flourish Statewide!

In our fifth grant cycle, we were excited to see how many of Pink Aid’s partner hospitals and organizations are evolving and developing strong programs to make screening available to everyone and to help the vast number of patients and families in critical need during treatment. Our grants span the entire range of the breast cancer cycle. From outreach in underserved and indigent populations to educate women about breast health and get them in for screening to compassionate support and financial assistance throughout treatment and wellness for better longterm outcomes.

Thanks to the pink hearts of our individual and corporate supporters, between our annual luncheon, annual appeal, Pink Purse fundraising and growing community initiatives, we are able to distribute over $600,000, satisfying a significant percentage of these requests, with Pink Purse funds on hand for emergency situations.

The grants committee shed more than a few tears during our in-depth vetting process and we are pleased to present this year’s worthy grant recipients.

2016 will mark Pink Aid’s fourth year partnering with The Smilow Cancer Hospital at Yale-New Haven to provide support to breast cancer patients in need through their cancer boutique. With the help of Pink Aid, the boutique is able to offer breast prostheses, bras, wigs, head wraps, and many other recovery items, regardless of a patient’s ability to pay. We also help patients in treatment with food cards.

We receive beautiful notes from patients at YNH and all our grant recipient partners. Here is one story that was shared by Lynore Aaron, the boutique’s certified (and very compassionate) mastectomy fitter.

Lynore had a Stage Four patient who wanted to visit her family in Israel after her mastectomy. Her family purchased a ticket as she couldn’t afford one, but she was unable to travel on an airplane as she had developed lymphedema in her legs. With Pink Aid’s grant, Lynore was able to fit this young woman with lymphedema pantyhose for her legs, so she was able to travel.

When the young woman returned from Israel for her chemotherapy, she visited Lynore to thank her for making the visit possible. Several weeks later, she returned to the boutique as she was now losing her hair. Again, thanks to Pink Aid’s grant, the boutique was able to fit her with a wig she could not have afforded.

Sadly, this young woman didn’t survive her battle with the disease. But as Lynore tearfully pointed out to us, because of Pink Aid’s generosity, she was able to see her family one last time and to live her last months and pass away wearing a wig, with dignity.
The Perfect Way to Honor Someone Special.
Pink Aid’s Mother’s Day Appeal
(and we’ll notify her of your beautiful gift!)

For Mother’s Day, it’s always nice to give a special gift or send flowers.

This year, why not make someone special feel really great with a meaningful gift that can make a real difference in the lives of others. The gift of a free mammogram that can save a life. A gift card that can feed a family while mom is in treatment. Or perhaps, you would like to help pay a breast cancer patient’s rent for a month and help keep their family afloat.

A great deal of the women Pink Aid supports are mothers. We can’t think of a more appropriate way to celebrate all mothers this Mother’s Day!

The Fairfield Theatre Company (FTC) was rocking on April 8th as Band Together CT hosted its third annual benefit concert for Pink Aid. A sold-out crowd feasted on pre-party apps from Marcia Selden Catering and The Whelk, sipped wines from Scheid Family Vineyards and beer courtesy of the Meissner Family and indulged on The Granola Bar’s yummy desserts.

The soulful and spirited music, led by birthday-boy bandleader Jerry Vigorito had the crowd on its feet with a great playlist that ranged from unexpected blues numbers like “Papa was a Rolling Stone” to Jimmy Hendrix’ “Let Me Stand Next to Your Fire” and danceable rock anthems like “Proud Mary” and “What I like About You.” Pink Rock’s “Billboard Top 10” Auction raised fun and funds with packages like “Purple Haze,” “Rock Lobster” and “Viva Las Vegas.”

One of the evening’s highlights were the stunning, larger than life decorations by Pink Aid’s own Amy Ringer.

The younger generation joined in as members of the Pink Aid Club were there to lend a helping hand.

Thank you to Susan Gersh, Debbie Meissner and the incredible community events team for an unforgettable event. And of course, thanks to all of the Pink Aid family who came out to show their support. You Rock!

Pink Aid is so grateful for the outpouring of support we are getting from our generous local community! Many local merchants, businesses and corporations have shown love to Pink Aid with donations of products, services and funding to our annual luncheon, silent auction and community events. Show your love back by patronizing businesses that support Pink Aid!

Thank you to all of you that graciously contributed to Pink Aid during Fairfield County Giving Day!
Pink Aid is grateful for all the support it receives — especially when it’s this sweet!

#BakeItHappen started as a Mitzvah project by Westport student Chelsea Strober. Chelsea baked more than $4,000 dollars worth of banana bread for Pink Aid last year.

This year, Lauren Spheeris got in on the action with “Cookies for Cancer” and is raising money for Pink Aid by baking and selling pink sugar cookies. Buffy Strober (Chelsea’s mom) got so many calls regarding the youth project that she agreed to help other students come up with ways to raise!

If you are a student who would like to raise money for Pink Aid, write to buffyzc@me.com.

Chelsea Strober has baked and sold hundreds of Banana Breads to benefit Pink Aid.
